DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

Examiner acknowledges receipt of amendment on 11/17/03.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 29-54 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by WO-00/32286 to Bennett et al. (“Bennett”). Bennett teaches a gaming or poker machine that incorporates random events combined with morphing/animated characters to aid in dispersing prizes (1:1-2:23). The character or “interactive symbol” is described in a plethora of embodiments wherein the character can interact with symbols displayed on the reels based on some triggering event (2:31-8:11 and Figs. 20-28). Bennett also teaches that the triggering mechanisms that can be used in any of the forgoing embodiments can be one of a periodic trigger, random trigger, external triggering event, specific operator activity, and specific player activity (11:8-35).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 11/17/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant has cancelled prior claims 1-28 and added new claims 29-54. While Applicant's new claims differ from the explicit recitation of the previous prior art of record, the new feature of the present claimed invention remain obvious over the prior art. Applicant is attempting to distinguish over the previously presented prior art by claiming a player selected symbol would be the symbol directed for transformation/interaction with a designated “interactive symbol”. Applicant is essentially claiming the mechanism used to determine the scope of the interaction between two symbols, wherein the randomization mechanism of the instant invention is a player selection. The prior art on the other hand, teaches a processor randomly selecting what symbols will be selected and slated for interaction/transformation with the interactive symbol. The only difference lies with the mechanism to choose the symbol for interaction. Examiner believes that this difference is a matter of obviousness, and points to Applicant’s disclosure discussing the interchangeability of the claimed features (Applicant’s Specification [0014]). Further support for this position is found in the rejection above, which details a reference that clearly anticipates Applicant’s claimed invention.

Art Unit: 3713

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
